Notes	Where the warning relates to child protection issues, see above. If the disciplinary proceedings relate to a child protection matter, please contact your Safeguarding Children Officer for further advice. Relevant to all disciplinary cases. The ACAS code of practice on disciplinary and grievance procedures recommends that the employee should be told how long a disciplinary warning will remain current. However, this does not mean that the data itself should be destroyed at the end of the set period. Any disciplinary proceedings data will be a record of an important event in the course of the employer's relationship with the employee. Should the same employee be accused of similar misconduct five years down the line and defend him- or herself by saying "I would never do something like that", reference to the earlier proceedings may show that the comment should not be given credence. Alternatively, if the employee were to be dismissed for some later offence and then claim at tribunal that he or she had "fifteen years of unblemished service", the record of the disciplinary proceedings would be effective evidence to counter this claim. Employers should, therefore, be careful not to confuse the expiry of a warning for disciplinary purposes with a requirement to destroy all reference to its existence in the personnel file. One danger is that the disciplinary procedure itself often gives the impression that, at the end of the effective period for the warning, the warning will be "removed from the file". This or similar wording should be changed to make it clear that, while the warning will not remain active in relation to future disciplinary matters, a record of what has occurred will be kept.

			years later. For example, you should keep records relating to the tax year 2022/23 (which ends 5 April 2023) until 31 January 2025 or longer if you are self-employed.
Notes	There is no harm in keeping them longer than strictly required. In particular, it is possible to go back up to four tax years to claim some reliefs and to claim a tax refund. In order to make those claims you need supporting evidence, so it would be helpful to keep records for at least four years after the end of the tax year.

			and it should not be kept for longer than six months. When the information is destroyed, it must be done securely. Once a recruitment (or other relevant) decision has been made, we do not keep certificate information (e.g. DBS number) for any longer than is necessary. This retention will allow for the consideration and resolution of any disputes or complaints, or be for the purpose of completing safeguarding audits. If the school disposes of the certificate the following information should be retained in line with the DBS Code of Practice: Retain the following after the certificate is destroyed - 1. The date of issue of a disclosure; 2. The name of the subject; 3. The type of the disclosure requested; the position for which the Disclosure was requested; 4. The unique reference number of the Disclosure; 5. The details of the recruitment decision taken.
